

Being in Voice

- means sharing your thoughts, ideas and feelings by means of a sound, healthy, audible and interesting voice.
 - You ARE interesting, so there is no reason why you should not SOUND interesting.
- Working with your voice is an art form, not a technical exercise; it's about expression, not projection.
- When you use your voice, you express yourself and, in doing so, you communicate something of yourself to the world beyond yourself. You invite your audience to see the world the way you see it, you share the world of ideas you are expressing.
- Your voice is an amazing instrument. It is you, audible
- Your voice is your body, imagination and intellect all together at once.
- Your voice is physical, and your support for your voice is ALL of you, ALL of the time.
- Working on your voice is not just working on your whole body; it is working on your whole self.